DIGITAL AND ONLINE INFORMATION

When you interact with our Site, we may use cookies, web beacons, and various other technologies to receive and store information, including your internet protocol (IP) address, internet browser information, device type and operating system, and date, time and duration of the visit to the Site. We also collect your web address and browser information when our content is presented on another website or on a mobile application, as applicable.

Cookies. Cookies are small data files that are delivered to a web browser by a web server. Cookies help us understand how you interact with our Site. We may keep track of your browsing activities, including collecting information about your visits to the Site and your interaction with our ads and content on other websites.

Generally, web browsers automatically accept cookies by default. At any time, you can adjust your browser preferences to selectively accept cookies or to refuse all cookies. However, some Site features or services may not function properly without cookies and the efficiency of the Site may be impacted.

Web Beacons. We use web beacons, also known as pixel tags, alone or in conjunction with cookies to compile information about your usage of the Site. Web beacons are clear electronic images that can recognize certain types of information on your computer, such as cookies, when you viewed a particular website tied to the web beacon, and a description of a website tied to the web beacon. We use web beacons to operate and improve our Site and email communications and to analyze the performance of our marketing campaigns. We may use information from web beacons in combination with data about users in general to provide you with information about us.

Interest-Based Advertising. Interest-based advertising, also known as online behavioral advertising, uses information collected across multiple websites that you visit in order to help predict your preferences and show you advertisements that are more likely to be of interest to you. We use this information to provide relevant marketing to you when you visit our Site or third-party websites. We also use third-party web beacons on our Site and on other sites to assist in managing and optimizing our online advertising.

In providing interest-based advertising, we follow the cross-industry Self-Regulatory Principles for Online Behavioral Advertising managed by the Digital Advertising Alliance.

If you choose to opt out of interest-based advertising, a cookie will be placed on your browser indicating your choice. Because cookies are stored by your browser, any opt-out election you make is valid only for the computer/browser combination used to opt out. Please note that even if you opt out of interest-based advertising, you may still receive advertisements from us, but they will not be customized based on your online browsing activities. Clearing your browser's cookies will remove your opt-out since it is stored in a cookie, and you will need to opt out again.
